November 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

San Francisco City Hall wedding photographer Joseph Kohn is now offering special two-hour wedding photography packages via his company IQ Photo.

The two-hour San Francisco City Hall wedding photography package includes unlimited photos from a single photographer, high-resolution files, and images uploaded into a password protected online gallery accessible only by family and selected friends. Clients can also order a full-size wedding album with the package.

"Get married at San Francisco City Hall and experience one of the truly unique wedding venues in North America," Joseph Kohn has stated since announcing the popular wedding photography package. "They only accept reservations ninety days or less in advance, so be sure to book your time as soon as possible. Once reserved, it's non-refundable and cannot be rescheduled.

The current San Francisco City Hall opened in 1915, a replacement structure for the original building that was destroyed in the 1906 earthquake. It boasts the fifth largest dome in the world and spans over 500,000 square feet. The most popular area for weddings is the Rotunda, but it's not recommended if you're expecting more than thirty people at the ceremony. It can also be difficult to get on special occasions or dates with some significance, like 12/12/12. Contact San Francisco City Hall for reservations.

City Hall is always available, which is amazing since it's one of the most sought after wedding venues in the world. We've seen couples come from all corners of the globe to get married here. If you're planning something like that, keep in mind that you need to secure a California marriage license before a city official or judge will perform the ceremony. Leave yourself plenty of time in advance to get that done."

Joseph Kohn is an award-winning wedding photographer who was voted "Best Wedding Photographer" in the annual San Francisco Chronicle "Best of the Bay" contest in 2010. He received over 70,000 votes in a field that included 239 photographers.
