Ivisnet Insurance, an up and coming investigative insurance research team in Denver, CO, is proud to be the only insurance broker of their kind. Not only do they help people find the best and most affordable insurance to suit their personal needs, but they have started a new system that makes sure the insurance providers they recommend are committed to improving communities and the world as a whole. This has made the Ivisnet Denver insurance broker incredibly popular and it looks like other brokers may start to use a similar system.

"We are committed to finding superior insurance providers in Denver, Colorado, that are not just composed of excellent business people, but are also involved in changing their communities by giving back time, money and resources," says Julie Stark from Ivisnet. "We're finding new ways to do business with those who care about others in their community by helping expose their business and their charity to the world in hopes that others follow suit."

Ivisnet helps people to find renters insurance, life insurance, auto insurance, home insurance, flood insurance, and business insurance. They also have comprehensive information available on what Colorado law dictates in terms of what each of these insurance types have to include. For instance, auto insurance has to include bodily injury liability, property damage liability, uninsured/underinsured motorists, medical payments coverage, collision coverage and comprehensive coverage. The broker, therefore, will only recommend insurance plans that meet those minimum requirements, but they also specifically recommend providers that do good for the community.

"Insurance companies aren't seen in a very good light by the majority of people," adds Julie Stark. "Many seem to them as huge companies that simply collect premiums and do everything they can to not pay out. We want to draw attention to those insurance companies that not only follow fair and transparent tactics, but that give back to the community as well, so that everybody benefits."

The company also recommends everyone to search for the Ivisnet Insurance Facebook page and give them a like. This will enable them to join in on the conversation about insurance and find out important new developments in the world of insurance companies, insurance laws and more.
