Bluffton, SC - In an effort to help promote home safety, Holliday Home Improvements advises the installation of reliable Egress Windows. Not only will they improve the client's home, but they also offer protection.

According to Holliday Home Improvements, installing egress windows helps, especially in times of emergency. Egress windows are fire code windows. They can be used as an escape route in case of emergencies. It is best installed in the basement, which also offers excellent ventilation.

Egress windows shall also follow a strict measurement. Unobstructed openings must be 3.8ft² and above, and the dimension shouldn't be less than 15 inches. Holliday Home Improvements says it is important to have an unobstructed space to exit during an emergency.

Basement windows also need a window well in most instances for easy accessibility. According to Holliday Home Improvements, the well should also meet egress window requirements, which should be 22 inches between each unit and the well's wall. It is to make escape easy in case of an emergency. Some also put a permanent ladder on the wells with greater depths.

Holliday Home Improvements says the egress window is one of the replacement windows they offer. The Window Replacement Company links customers with the most reputable suppliers. The days when clients had restricted options are long gone. South Carolina and Georgia customers have access to Holliday Home Improvements' custom-made, high-quality, long-lasting, aesthetically pleasing, and energy-efficient premium windows, which are manufactured to their specifications.

"Our windows are made to the highest quality standards. We design, install, guarantee, and maintain your windows directly. We provide limitless customization choices," according to Jason Holliday, the owner and founder of the window and door replacement business.
