December 28, 2022 -

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania ? After the number of homeowners placing tree care bookings with Philadelphia Tree Service Experts increased, the company had no other option but to add more tree experts to its tree care team.

"Philadelphia Tree Service Experts clients are used to high-quality tree care services," said the CEO during the announcement. "To save homeowners from receiving the bare minimum, the company opted to expand its tree care crew."

The CEO noted that the recently employed specialists had the required experience in offering tree care services. He went on to say that each of the company's employees has an ISA certification and a tree-care-related degree, demonstrating their ability to handle trees.

He also noted that the workers went through serious vetting before they were allowed to work for the company.

"Philadelphia Tree Service Experts has worked so hard to maintain the "home of professionals" title for so long," said the CEO. "This cannot be brought down by the recruitment of a few more employees." Therefore, the company was veritably keen on the recruitment process. The minimal requirement was five years of experience, a tree care-related instrument, and a good work record.?

According to the CEO, the new move would help Philadelphia Tree Service Experts serve a larger area. He also prompted tree owners far from Philadelphia to use the company's website to place their tree care service bookings.

"Expanding the company's tree care team," said the CEO, "pushed the company to expand its services outside the megacity limits. The company will be open for any tree care service in the cities near Philadelphia from hereon. For homeowners far from Philadelphia, they should visit the company website to make tree care orders online."

The CEO noted that the company is now open to emergency services. He added that the company's tree care professionals were ready to respond to all services immediately.

"Emergency services for Philadelphia Tree Service Experts have not been available to anyone, not even homeowners in Philadelphia," said the CEO. "This was because of a shortage of workers. Since there are now enough employees, nothing can stop Philadelphia Tree Service Experts from offering emergency services. That makes Philadelphia Tree Service Experts the home of all tree care services. With enough qualified employees, the company is now ready to respond to tree care requests in the shortest time possible."

The CEO also noted that the company had equipped its workers with enough tools and types of equipment. He also added that the company had recently bought new working tools.

"A few weeks ago," said the CEO, "Philadelphia Tree Service Experts bought more advanced tree care service tools and pieces of equipment. This was to make sure that all the new tree care experts had enough working tools. This will help to perform all tree care procedures quickly, leaving more time to handle further jobs."

The CEO promised that the company would give exceptional services to homeowners in Philadelphia and its suburbs.

"Philadelphia Tree Service Experts now has a chance to prove a point," said the CEO. "What point? A better version of your trees exists. The company will make sure what is delivered goes beyond homeowners' prospects.
