My Biz Phone Robot has studied the mobile marketing domain since it publicized the launch of its product of the same name My Biz Phone Robot back in 2017. My Biz Phone Robot's text and call widget was vowed to shake things up and 5 years later, proofs are in.

Before, with even a glimpse, an individual would notice that most businesses use chatbots to reply to customers. The CEO at My Biz Phone Robot, Chris, makes a point of saying, "Things were always going to change when we released My Biz Phone Robot."

Chris continues, "Where you'll probably always see our competitors doing the same old thing, we sought to take pride in having our very own text and call widget to aid businesses answer to customers and communicate for marketing commitments. We do this because while chatbot has been a standard, we believe that providing customers and the business the resources to communicate using a text and call platform is quicker, easier, and more fitting. Ultimately we knew it was going to be of big advantage to our customers because there's a substantial increase in mobile users which is the motive the text and call widget is created: the ease of texting or calling the business for inquiries or concern and as well as provide customers updates and promotions. We are crossing fingers others follow suit."

My Biz Phone Robot was established in 2017. It has been doing business since 2017 and it has always aimed to revolutionize in any large or small way it can, due to the strong belief that innovation drives progress and greater happiness.

Currently, the closest thing to My Biz Phone Robot is the chatbot widget, but My Biz Phone Robot enhanced on this by providing customers a way to truly communicate with businesses better. This alone was sufficient to make My Biz Phone Robot's text and call widget more popular with customers in the mobile marketing space, quickly.
