Roofing Today of Sydney is a New South Wales contractor that very early on established a solid reputation for the work that it provides its customers along with the courteous way it treats those customers as that roofing work commences. It has also become known for being a very forward-thinking Sydney Roofer. Proof of this is offered by the company's recent announcement that it has launched a new and improved website.

A spokesperson for Roofing Today of Sydney, Brendan Rice, says, "Here at our reputable Sydney roofing company we all like to work together as a team and that helps us better accomplish our goals and better serve our customers. That's why when a few of us brought up the fact that our old website had some shortcomings, it was decided to create a new website version. One that takes the best of what our old website offered and combines it with some innovative traits that many newly created websites are incorporating into them. All of which has been done to give our customers and prospective customers a better and more user-friendly experience when they visit our website."

Rice went on to say that most of the customers that they have talked to that have used the new website give it two thumbs up. They talk about how the drop-down menus get them quickly to the information on the company's roofing services that they are interested in and how the information on the page is displayed concisely. Users of the new website also like the colors that are being used as the background for the text because it makes the words on the page easier to read. He says this new and improved website version also contains a more detailed 'About Us' section and includes more ways than ever before to contact them. This includes adding a 'Get in Touch' form at the very top of the homepage when the website is first accessed.

According to Rice, the new website also does a better job of describing the many different roofing services that they offer. This includes both the commercial and residential roofing work that the company does. He says for example that the new website version makes it clear that they can be contacted 24/7 if someone in the Sydney area needs an emergency roof repair. There are also improved details on the main roof repair services this contractor offers such as its roof replacement work and the experienced roof leak detection & resolution tasks that Roofing Today of Sydney is often called upon to perform. The company representative stated that the new website also goes into more detail on some of the lesser-known roof-related services that the company does such as gutter & downspout repairs and installations and roof maintenance work.

Rice stated that the company hopes the improved website can bring more business their way so they can deliver even more 5-star-rated roofing services to their customers. Here are some examples of roof repairs in Sydney reviews that were taken from the company's Google Maps Business listing. A listing where Roofing Today of Sydney boasts having a perfect 5-star rating when all its reviews are averaged together. Shane Elgar stated, 'Roofing Today of Sydney has done a couple of roof repairs for us now. I have been pleased with the results each time. They didn't shy away from the difficult stuff either. They are the people I call for anything that has to do with our roof.' Shamus Harvey proclaimed, 'Our roof restoration was recently completed, and we are very satisfied and pleased with the results. Roofing Today of Sydney is fabulous and recommended. This contractor is efficient, responsive, hassle-free, got the job done promptly, and takes pride in its work. Our roof looks brand new.' Price added that their service area has also been extended to include most of the Greater Sydney area and beyond to include Barangaroo, The Rocks, Millers Point, Pyrmont, Woolloomooloo, Dawes Point, Ultimo, Haymarket, Potts Point, and Darlinghurst.

Those that would like to know more about this Sydney roofing contractors services can refer to the above-mentioned newly launched website for that information.
