Bling! Premier Lighting of Marietta, Georgia is a professional outdoor lighting services provider that has become well known for its lighting designs and installations that are combined with world-class customer service. But what may not be as well-known about this reputable outdoor lighting company is how it makes the process of getting outdoor lighting installed virtually stress-free. Something that a representative of the company wanted to talk more about. He says, "Until Marietta homeowners try to take on outdoor lighting projects themselves, they most likely do not realize all that is involved with doing this task. We do it every day, so trust me when I say it involves a lot. That's why we encourage those that come to us seeking outdoor lighting installation help to let us use our many years of experience to make that project as stress-free as possible for them."

The company representative stated that their stress-free outdoor lighting projects start with their experienced design team. They will listen to what a homeowner envisions accomplishing aesthetic-wise from adding outdoor lighting and then use their extensive knowledge to come up with a design that will bring that customer's vision to life. They even have advanced software that will allow a customer to get an approximation of what their new outdoor lighting will look like once in place. He says this allows the customer and their design team to make any changes to a newly created outdoor lighting plan before the project even starts. Homeowners can make their outdoor lighting planning experience even more hassle-free by choosing one of the many pre-designed outdoor lighting plans that Blingle Premier Lighting offers. The plans their design team creates add beautiful regular and accent lighting to such home and landscaping features as patios, decks, porches, gazebos, outdoor pools, roof ridgelines, pathways, and lighting for outdoor bar and kitchen areas. These plans can feature low voltage led lighting, residential lighting, dock lighting, landscape lighting, string lighting, deck outdoor living lighting, patio chandelier, accent lights, accessibility lighting, and more.

Once a customer has signed off on the outdoor lighting design plan, the job is then handed over to the company's talented installation team. The consistent success of Blingle Premier Lighting's projects is a testament to how good their technicians are at their craft. He mentioned that they even know exactly where to place new outdoor lighting setups to provide the maximum effect when they are turned on after dark. The company representative says that the quality lighting materials they use during their projects also put a customer's mind at ease. This includes very bright lights that can be seen from further away than the ordinary lights that homeowners can purchase themselves. Using quality light fixtures and cords on their outdoor lighting installations also offers better protection against the elements and ensure the longevity of the newly installed outdoor lighting systems. The spokesperson for this Marietta lighting contractor says that their outdoor lighting design and installation process is a simple guided one that has proven to be impactful time and time again.

Further proof that the professional outdoor lighting services that Blingle Premier Lighting offers can help make the task hassle-free comes in the form of a recent glowing review that a customer wrote. Summer Huggins stated, "Blingle took the stress out of the holidays for us! With a million other things going on, putting up and taking down lights that look neat, balanced, and highlight our home, wasn't something I had to worry about this year thanks to them. Christie was on top of communication and ensured they went up and came down at the best possible time for us. We were so impressed with the company's service that they're now handling our new landscape lighting; that process has also been a breeze so far."
