New York City divorce attorneys at New York Family Law Group (<https://www.newyorkfamilylawgroup.com/blog/new-years-resolutions-for-the-newly-divorced/>) release a new article on their website discussing what to expect after getting divorced in the new year. The lawyer mentions that overcoming the challenges of going through a divorce is challenging. However, managing one's expectations can help one handle challenges effectively.

Self-compassion helps you adopt a positive balance of your painful emotions, and it is crucial when going through a divorce. However, preparing your finances to face the new chapter of your life is also vital. This could mean setting financial goals and creating a budget to ensure you can support yourself and your kids financially, the article from the New York City divorce attorneys says.

New York divorce can be a complex and emotionally draining process, especially for those who are unprepared for what to expect. However, understanding the legal process and knowing what to expect can help alleviate some of the stress and uncertainty.

The lawyers add that one thing to keep in mind when getting divorced in the new year is that financial disputes may arise. The court will divide the assets, liabilities, and income between one and one's partner if both are unable to agree to mediation. Also, issues like child support and distribution of liabilities may arise after finalizing the divorce process.

It is also important to remember that the standard of living and social network of each party may be affected by the divorce. Coming to terms with the fact that some major changes are going to take place can help the individual try and move on with their life after the separation.

Lastly, the lawyer emphasizes the importance of having a skilled child support attorney when dealing with matters related to child support. A skilled lawyer may be able to help the parents understand their roles and responsibilities in the divorce and help them come to a favorable agreement.
