In the five-star Yelp review, Frank M. said, "First time I've used CWS and I would definitely use again. Called 2 days ago to schedule a clean out of my septic tank. The office person was friendly and efficient. Truck showed up at 9:45 (scheduled window was between 9:30 and 11:30.) Spent some time locating the tank lid and had the job done by 11:00. Even installed a replacement lid since my old one was cracked and broken down. Fair, reasonable price. Highly recommend."

They want to emphasize that routine maintenance is vital for a septic system. A properly maintained septic system will offer a lawful and safe means of waste disposal for the plumbing system of a home. It will also ensure a healthy and operational system that the home can rely on for many years.

They also offer BIO-CLEAN, which is made up of a blend of enzymes and bacteria that can be used for treating the septic system. The enzyme concentration is the most potent on the market and the bacteria are natural and have not been genetically engineered. This treatment solution for septic tanks is non-toxic and doesn't create heat, fumes, or boiling. It will not attack live tissue or inorganic materials. It will only act on grease, food particles, hair, paper, cotton, and sewage. It converts these waste particles into carbon dioxide, water, and mineral ash that can be disposed of without any problem. And the resulting products may then be available for plant life. BIO-CLEAN works within one hour after it has been poured into the drain. The bacteria will start to eat their way into the waste that has accumulated on the top and sides of the drain pipe because that is their natural food. They digest the waste and clean the system completely.

They also usually provide septic inspections, which are of two types. One is the basic routine homeowner's inspection while the other type is a more detailed real estate septic system inspection. The basic inspection service will include determining the quantity of waste inside and providing maintenance recommendations. Real estate septic system inspections are more thorough and are provided for the current homeowner. They will perform the basic septic inspection service plus access the distribution box and then water test the drain field to ensure that there is proper absorption.
