Newly Released Tactical Flashlight Can Be Used As Holiday Stocking Stuffer

November 27, 2015 -
Coronado, CA business Perfectly Vivid has recently released their new tactical flashlight, which they suggest is ideal as a holiday gift. The flashlight can be used as a holiday stocking stuffer, particularly for people who are survivalists or otherwise like the great outdoors. Furthermore, the flashlight is so lightweight that it could even be placed in a handmade felt Christmas stocking without it breaking. Full details about the flashlight are available through http://perfectlyvivid.com/.

Dr. Christopher Vogelmann from Perfectly Vivid says: "Our tactical flashlight is already proving to be very popular. We wanted to create something multifunctional, durable and powerful and we feel we have succeeded in this."

The flashlight has a very high lumen, but uses very little battery power. This makes it ideal for emergency situations and is one of the main reasons why many of those who have purchased it are doomsday preppers. However, it can also be used in many other applications, such as industrial building repair, mountain biking and more. In fact, it can even be used as a self-defense weapon, as it is so strong that it could be run over by a truck and yet still work.

Since its original release, the flashlight has already received numerous positive reviews. "This is a sturdy, well built flashlight. It is small, but packs a lot of power," says Stephanie W. "It was nicely packaged in a box which also included a case and a orange cone attachment. This would be a great flashlight to keep in your car in case of emergencies. Once the orange cone is attached it can be used as a warning light. The flashlight also features three different light settings, a high beam, low beam, and a strobe/flashing setting. Spinning the red ring around the top brings the light stream into focus."

With Christmas only just around the corner, it is expected that sales of this flashlight will go through the roof. It is the perfect stocking stuffer for people of all genders, ages and interests.

The company also encourages everybody to give them a like on Facebook through
