WestOz Trades Air Conditioning Services, an air conditioning contractor in Perth, WA, has explained why ducted air conditioning may be preferred in Perth. They want to emphasise that a ducted air conditioning system is an effective method of providing the comfort of air conditioning throughout the entire house. A high quality and effective ducted air conditioning system is designed to be tailor-fitted to the shape and size of the home and can offer a wide range of cooling and heating alternatives.

Louis Carter, founder of West Oz Trades Air Conditioning Services, says, ?With a range of ducted systems available, it?s easy to find one that fits the size of your home and that meets your budget. Ducted inverter systems also offer excellent air quality, as they use advanced technology to maintain cool or heat your home at a consistent level. When living in Perth, where hot and humid conditions are common, having a ducted air conditioning system is essential for keeping your family comfortable during the warmer months. With the right ducted system installed in your home, you?ll be able to enjoy year-round temperature control and improved air quality in every room.?

Meanwhile, with regards to the best ducted air conditioning system in Perth, they recommend the reverse-cycle ducted air conditioner, which works by circulating cool or warm air throughout a space through a series of ducts that are connected to an outdoor unit. And this kind of ducted air conditioning system can inconspicuously enable one to have control of the temperature in the entire home or office. Another advantage of this kind of ducted system is that it can be utilised all year round because it can be used for heating during winter and for cooling during summer.

Residents of Perth can contact WestOz Trades Air Conditioning Services for air conditioner repair or installation. They pride themselves in having a team of professional and efficient installers with more than 30 years of experience in air conditioning. They are capable of installing, repairing and servicing all kinds of makes and models.

With regards to installation, they can install and replace evaporative systems, split systems, and reverse cycle ducted systems. They specialise in AC installations for new homes under construction and also in the installation and replacement options for existing homes. While they install most well-known brands, they are authorised dealers for Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and Actron Air. They also work seamlessly with strata companies and other governing building bodies to make sure all of their installations are compliant with the guidelines set for the property. And all of their work is covered by a five-year workmanship warranty.

As for AC repair, they have experienced and fully qualified technicians who can help in getting the AC system back into working condition with minimal downtime at an affordable price. To do this, they have partnered with quality spare parts providers that ensure quality parts at competitive prices. They will always make sure that the most cost-effective solution for each client.

Started in 2016 by Louis Carter, WestOz Trades Air Conditioning Services started as a simple one-man enterprise with Louis and his trusted dog but rapidly becoming a reputed HVAC services provider to clients in the residential and property management industry because of his honesty and high integrity. It is interesting to note that all of these clients are still with WestOz Trades. Currently, WestOz has grown into a full-service air conditioning service, installation, and maintenance provider for both small and large scale businesses all throughout Australia. The company has a fleet of fully equipped of vehicles with knowledgeable, reliable, and experienced technicians who always comply with the core value of the company.
