Global Builders Warehouse, a company based in Doveton, Victoria, Australia, has recently published a blog post that explains what SPC Hybrid flooring is with the industry-leading Välinge 5G locking mechanism. This innovative 5G lock technology eliminates the need for nailing or gluing. All that is required to install the floor panels is a single person, a single movement, and one pair of hands. This can substantially decrease installation time, whether it is a DIY or a professional installation.

Hasan Yuvarajah from Global Builders Warehouse explains, "Floor installation should be a fast and simple process with perfect results every time. That means no gaps between the boards, no unevenness and no squeaking sounds. Equally important, the floor should remain perfect for the lifetime of the floor. 5G locking systems are the industry standard for installing floors. The long sides of the floor panels are locked with a traditional angling method and 5G or 5G-i is used for easy and fast installation by vertical snap without the need of any tools. Installation time is reduced dramatically to almost half when compared to other solutions."

5G® is the Välinge brand for the internationally recognized fold down installation system that is currently being used by over 100 floor manufacturers all over the world. With 5G locking technology, it is much easier to install a floor. This system is based on a single action installation technique that can be used for all kinds and widths of floor materials. Meanwhile, 5G-I is the brand for SPC Hybrid's one-piece installation systems with the locking element included in the core. With this system, as the panel is folded down, a locking strip that easily bends is used to lock the panels in place. The locking strip flexes back when the guiding surfaces have passed each other and the locking strip pulls down the folded panel into a perfectly aligned and locked position. This locking system has been tested to be superior to other locking systems through laboratory tests.

Also available from Global Builders Warehouse is engineered timber flooring. This is a type of flooring that has been gaining in popularity. It is typically preferred by designers because of their beauty, ease of installation, and wide range of installation. These engineered timber are solid boards of timber. They are made by combining several layers of timber boards together. These layers of timber boards, which are also called ply, are joined with each other. They offer several benefits, such as: having a completely unique floor; luxury and elegance; aesthetics of solid hardwood; much lower cost when compared to solid hardwood; minimal environmental impact; availability in pre-finished format; reduction of waste; quick and easy installation; ease of repair; highly stable flooring; the fact that it doesn't warp or swell; allergy friendly; compatibility with under floor heating; and lifetime warranty.

They also offer laminate wood flooring, which offers high-performing and cost-effective option for integrating hard flooring to the home or office. The advantages of this kind of flooring is its affordability, aesthetics, extreme resilience, ease of installation, and simple maintenance requirement.
