Kansas City, MO - Mouth guards have come into prominence with people wanting to protect their teeth during night-time bruxism. Bruxism is the condition of clenching the jaw and grinding on the teeth excessively especially during rest at night. A mouth guard from ProDental has been seen as a perfect solution to this problem. The product also functions as teeth whitening trays and a sports mouth guard.

The teeth whitening trays are liked by online shoppers not only because of their multiple functionality but because of their affordability and durability. According to the company, the teeth whitening trays are capable of fitting any size or dimension of mouth that the user may possess. This is possible due to the supreme molding that the teeth whitening trays can undergo before it is utilized by customers.

Customers follow a simple procedure to mold the teeth whitening trays to the shape of their mouth and teeth. The user boils a pot of water then places the mouth guard in it. Users then watch the dental guard until it starts to fold and removes it from the hot water with a spoon. They place it on a paper towel to dry and cool down for a few seconds. The user then places it in their mouth, while closing their lips and sucking all the air out so it conforms to their front teeth. At this time the user also pushes on the inside with their tongue and pushes with their fingers on their cheeks. Afterwards the user should have a mouth guard that was easy to conform to the shape of their mouth and teeth.

One satisfied reviewer on Amazon remarked, "As it says in the description, you can trim it to fit your mouth, personally I did not have to trim mine. It fit my mouth perfectly! You can mold this mouth guard to fit your teeth perfectly very easily!... All in all I am very satisfied with this product! I recommend it to anyone needing a mouth guard for any reason!?"

The teeth whitening trays are soft yet long lasting. According to the company, irrespective of the function the user chooses for the mouth guard, it can last for upwards of one year or longer. The product is dentist designed and manufactured in the USA. The mouth guard is made from FDA approved polyvinyl material that is odor free and taste free.

Customers can purchase the teeth whitening trays for an affordable price on Amazon. If the user purchases two or more of the product then they can be afforded free shipping.
