Kansas City, MO - The Amazon vendor MKC Products have released a product called Mouth Guard from ProDental that is gaining much traction with online shoppers. The product has been specially designed and is manufactured with customers in mind. The manufacturers have decided to ensure the customer receives the best possible quality of product. This they have done by making the mouth guard from a thermoplastic that is BPA-Free and also FDA Approved.

The fact that the teeth whitening trays are free of Bisphenol A (BPA) is testament to ProDental wanting a wholesome product useful for multiple functions. BPA is a substance sometimes included in the lining of plastics by manufacturers. However they tend to leak the chemical out during use and it is found to have deleterious effects on people especially children. The chemicals released are said to cause much damage to the lungs and brain of those exposed.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is the agency which approves drugs and biologics that are new on the market. The teeth whitening trays by ProDental made from a FDA approved material that is suitable for usage by the general public. New drugs and biologics have to be proven safe and effective by the FDA before the corresponding company can market them. The FDA however does not develop or test products themselves. Their experts simply review laboratory and clinical testing in animals and humans that were done by manufacturers to see if they are suitable for general use.

The teeth whitening trays are manufactured in the USA so online shoppers from the United States will be supporting the local economy when they purchase. The product is totally hygienic and made with polyvinyl material. This material makes the product soft and flexible. It is also odor free and taste free. Even though the teeth whitening trays are soft they are built to be long lasting. The dental guard should be able to last 12 months or longer even if it is used for different purposes.

The mouth guards can serve multiple purposes. Firstly, the mouth guards can function as teeth whitening trays. That means it can assist people to whiten their teeth more. Additionally, the mouth guards can act as an athletic dental guard or as a night guard protector against teeth grinding.

The teeth whitening trays are built to offer maximum comfort to the wearer. The customer can order with confidence because the product has a better than money-back guarantee that is redeemable over 30 days.
