Oceanside, CA ? Oceanside Tree Service Experts, a leading provider of quality tree care services in the region, has released a new study that explores the connection between tree care and property value. The research was conducted by Hagery Frank, CEO of Oceanside Tree Service Experts, and delved into how correctly cared-for trees can add significant value to a property.

The study found that, in addition to aesthetic value, a tree's health and longevity can positively impact the property's overall value. Properly cared for trees increase the amount of oxygen in the air, improve soil quality and provide shade that helps reduce energy costs associated with home cooling.

Moreover, they also act as habitats and increase habitat diversity which, in turn, increases the potential to attract birds or other animals that can feed off pests or destroy weeds that can devalue an outdoor space.

The study also looked at how ineffective tree care practices can be detrimental to environmental sustainability and local communities' economic growth. For example, poorly maintained trees can result in weakened roots and branches that are more likely to fall during storms or become infested with diseases, which can be costly for homeowners in terms of repairs or removal fees. Additionally, over-pruning may result in light deprivation for nearby landscapes, reducing flowering, fewer berries produced by fruit-bearing trees, and even death from a lack of photosynthesis. Unhealthy trees also emit higher levels of carbon dioxide.

The study uncovered several key findings. Properly pruned and maintained trees can increase a home's curb appeal, making it more attractive to potential buyers. The research also revealed that well-maintained trees are less likely to cause property damage due to falling branches or pests. Additionally, the study found that properties with healthy, mature trees can often bring about a 5-15% increase in sale price compared to similar properties without trees.

Hagery Frank commented on the study's findings: "We were thrilled to uncover the strong connection between well-cared-for trees and property value. Our team is committed to providing our clients with superior tree care services so they can protect their investment and maximize their property's value."
