Columbus Tree Service Experts Implements Strict Training and Certification Program to Meet the Highest Industry Standards

Columbus, OH ? Columbus Tree Service Experts has announced a strict new training and certification program to ensure its arborists meet the highest industry standards. The program is the brainchild of company CEO Michael Johnson, who wanted to ensure every customer receives the highest quality tree service possible.

Under the new program, all Columbus Tree Service Experts' arborists must undergo rigorous classroom and field training. In addition, the company has hired experienced industry trainers to provide both theoretical and practical instruction on tree care and maintenance, as well as safety protocols to ensure the protection of employees, customers, and property.

Additionally, every arborist must pass a comprehensive certification exam before they are allowed to accept any tree service assignments. That way, customers can be sure that their trees are in the hands of professionals who understand the importance of proper technique.

Once certified, arborists will be required to continue their training throughout the year at workshops designed to keep them up-to-date with changes in regulations, technology, and industry best practices. They must also maintain their certifications through regular continuing education courses.

This is an essential part of the program; it ensures that even after certification is achieved, arborists stay informed about developments in the field and remain constantly prepared for any job they may encounter. Not only does this guarantee quality workmanship for customers, but it also provides peace of mind that their trees are safe and in competent hands.

"At Columbus Tree Service Experts, we take pride in providing customers with the best tree care services available," said Johnson. "That's why I am proud to announce our new training and certification program. It ensures that our arborists are well-trained and certified to provide top-notch services to our customers."

The new training and certification program covers everything from pruning to removing dead or hazardous trees. Not only do the arborists learn about the essential aspects of tree care, but they must also demonstrate a high proficiency in safety protocols and the use of climbing equipment to be formally certified by the company. By providing this rigorous certification process, the company can be sure that any arborist they employ is highly skilled and knowledgeable in all aspects of tree care.

"We want our customers to know that their trees are in good hands," said Johnson. "This rigorous training and certification program ensures our arborists have the knowledge and skills needed to safely and effectively perform tree services for our customers."

In addition to the training and certification program, Columbus Tree Service Experts has also implemented several other measures to ensure customer safety, including a fleet of modern equipment operated by trained technicians and daily inspections to check for any potential hazards. The company also offers a 24-hour emergency service for any unforeseen tree-related issues.

"We understand how important it is for our customers to feel secure in entrusting us with their trees," said Johnson. "That's why we are committed to providing exemplary service through our training and certification program and other measures. As a result, we're confident our customers will be satisfied with their experience."
