customers make informed decisions about their property's trees. With its comprehensive list of services, this leading tree service provider will meet all tree care needs, especially when protecting native trees from the harmful effects of invasive species.

Invasive species are non-native trees that can cause environmental damage or harm to native trees and animals. These species often spread quickly and compete with native species for resources such as light, water, and space, resulting in the displacement of native species and disruption of natural ecosystems.

"We have seen an increase in invasive species in Southern California over the past few years," said Gunther Gus, CEO of Tree Service Experts Rancho Cucamonga. "Our goal is to help our customers identify and remove these species before they become a problem. In addition, our new service is designed to provide homeowners with the knowledge they need to make informed decisions about their trees."

The team will then identify any potential invasive species and provide advice on how best to remove them. If needed, they will also offer specialized removal services to ensure that all invasive species are removed safely and effectively.

The company is also offering additional services such as replanting native species, trimming, pruning, and fertilizing existing trees, as well as providing guidance on pest control and disease prevention. This comprehensive approach ensures customers access a complete range of tree care services.

Gunther Gus, the founder of Tree Service Experts Rancho Cucamonga, emphasized the company's dedication to safeguarding homes and families from the harmful effects of invasive tree species.
