Hawkins Wealth Advisory LLC, a business in Phoenix, AZ, has announced that they now offer pilots' loss of license and income insurance. As a business that focuses specifically on providing financial products to high income earners, they are one of the few that offers this type of insurance. "Many people dream of being a pilot when they are young, soaring through the clouds at thousands of feet high in the air," says Robert E. Hawkins from Hawkins Wealth Advisory LLC. "Very few actually pursue that dream when they grow up, due to lack of both nerves and skill. And even out of those who do pursue the career, very few actually make it as a professional pilot. But once they do, they have to deal with significant emotional and physical issues for which they are well-compensated financially. Should they lose their job, for whatever reason, however, they will find themselves in great financial difficulty. This is why we offer pilot's loss of license and income insurance."

Pilots are human beings too. As such, their bodies grow old just like everybody else. Add to this the emotional strain of holding the responsibility of a plane and all its passengers in their hands, it is very common for pilots to have to cease work long before the average retirement age. This is why they often require more than simple disability insurance.

Robert E. Hawkins, as can be seen on http://www.linkedin.com/company/hawkins-wealth-advisory, has tremendous experience in the field of insurance. He noted that, while disability insurance often includes an 'own occupation' definition, this is very limited. This is why more specific insurance was required for pilots.

"Loss of license insurance exists to ensure pilots are covered should they lose their license, particularly if they do so through their health status," adds Hawkins. "Many times, they would not actually be disabled, but simply suffer from common conditions such as hypertension, which makes it impossible for them to retain their license. Our loss of license coverage covers virtually all pilots, from corporate to test and from commercial to firefighter."

As can be seen on http://www.gbg.com/hawkins, Hawkins is a global insurance provider that offers many highly specific forms of insurance.
