The wildlife animals they service in the Greater Houston Metro area include: armadillo, bats, beavers, birds, gophers, insect pests, moles, opossums, pigeons, raccoons, rodents, skunks, snakes, squirrels, and wild hogs. Their experienced group of wildlife control specialists will visit the client's property and humanely remove the animals.

Brian Moss, co-owner of AAAC Wildlife Removal, says, "Nuisance wildlife is a part of life in Houston. They usually enter our yards in search of food or a place to build a nest. These animals can carry diseases and parasites that are harmful to humans and pets. Some wildlife, such as raccoons and snakes, can be aggressive and pose a danger to people. That's why it's important to call a professional wildlife removal company like AAAC Wildlife Removal of Houston when you have a nuisance animal on your property. Our experts will safely and humanely remove the animal and take steps to prevent them from returning. We also clean up any waste the animal has left behind and fix all the damage they have caused, so you can rest easy knowing your property is safe and healthy."

Wildlife can pose many dangers to both the people in the home and the property. In addition to the possibility of these animals carrying diseases that can cause harm to people, but they can also cause a lot of damage to a home or business. Some of the diseases wild animals may carry are rabies, hantavirus, and Lyme disease. All of these can result into serious health problems if they are not treated promptly and properly.

Wild animals can also cause damage to the property, which can be costly to repair. Beavers and nutria tend to gnaw on trees and shrubs, while moles and voles tend to dig tunnels under homes and businesses, which can weaken the foundation or create sinkholes in the yard. Raccoons, skunks, and opossums tend to burrow through trash looking for food and causing a mess in the yard or lawn. Other problems that wildlife may cause include bites and stings, noise, and foul odors.

Raccoons are some of the most common animals that invade homes in Houston. They can carry diseases and can cause a lot of damage to the property. Thus, it is recommended that property owners call a professional Houston raccoon removal company and they will go to the property to conduct an inspection and then establish a plan to effectively and safely remove the raccoons from the property. Trying to eliminate raccoons can be difficult and dangerous. This is because raccoons have sharp teeth and claws, and they can be aggressive. And with the risk of their carrying rabies, it is not a good idea to handle them. The raccoon repellents available on the market are mostly ineffective and just a waste of money. And products that create flashing lights and loud noises may scare them away but only for a short period of time.

AAAC Wildlife Removal will always use humane trapping methods to remove wild animals from the home. They will always employ the appropriate techniques and equipment to safely remove the animals and ensure they are not harmed in the process.

Founded in 1995 as A All Animal Control by Mark E. Dotson in Northglenn, CO, it experienced rapid growth. They were the top franchise for 10 consecutive years and in 2014, Dotson sold the company to Josie and Brian Moss. Under their leadership, the company was able to double system-wide revenues in four years.
