March 15, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mighty Dog Roofing of Greater New Orleans is pleased to offer the community a comprehensive, straightforward roofing experience. The company is capable of completing roofing projects for commercial and residential customers, and their team takes pride in utilizing a variety of modern technologies to accomplish their goals.

A variety of home improvement services are available in addition to roofing. For instance, the company can install gutters, siding and windows (including skylights), and customers will be able to schedule maintenance if they so wish, either for a single occasion or on a regular basis. The same is true for the company's entire spectrum of roofing services. They provide installation, repair and maintenance for all kinds of roofs, such as asphalt and metal. This gives customers the convenient option of having several aspects of their property inspected (and resolved, if necessary) by a single contractor during a single visit.

The company proudly stands behind their work, and this is why they also offer a craftsmanship warranty along with the manufacturer's warranty that accompanies every product. This means that customers can expect the company's work to stand the test of time, and in the unlikely event an issue arises in the future, a team will be dispatched promptly to take care of it. Taking matters even further, Mighty Dog confidently offers customers access to their exclusive ? and free ? Mighty Watchdog Maintenance program.

Mighty Dog Roofing of Greater New Orleans has a strong reputation for working with customers to achieve the result they want. While a professional's recommendation is typically the best course of action, the final decision is always up to the customer, and the team does their utmost to respect this. Instead, they say their job is to give homeowners and businesses as many viable options as possible along with a breakdown of the advantages (or drawbacks) of each.

"We are always guests on your property," notes Mighty Dog Roofing, "and that means what you say goes. Of course, we draw the line at doing anything that will eventually pose a danger to you or your neighbors, but we strive to be flexible and responsive to what you want rather than what we are simply accustomed to doing."

The company adds, "The average customer knows relatively little about the intricacies of roofing, but that does not mean they cannot make informed decisions with a little conscientious guidance. That is our purpose in the planning stage; we give you all the information you need to weigh the good and bad for yourself. We find that customers usually agree with our team's assessment when they have all the relevant information about their roof's needs."

Customers who have run afoul of contractors in the past will prefer to have hard proof of any claims that are made today, and Mighty Dog says that this is made much easier thanks to their use of drone technology. In most cases, it is considered unwise for a customer to climb their roof to examine it as this poses a safety risk. The company has bypassed this issue, however, with drone photography, taking images and video of any damage or other issues they find to paint an accurate, irrefutable picture that is freely shared with the customer.

Reviews of the company's work allude to this as well. Tina N. says that she is, "Very happy with Mighty Dog Roofing and both Mike Nolan and Jovon Morris. First, I called on a Sunday thinking I'd get a call on Monday. I received a call about an hour later on Sunday! Monday, Mr. Morris went out and measured and took photos. Monday afternoon, I had an estimate and then scheduled the installation. Today is Friday, and the whole, fantastic job is done (perfectly) and cleaned up and done, done, done! I haven't had such good service and work since Covid hit! Most excellent! I totally and completely recommend these guys and this company! Thank you so much, guys!?"
