A Better Garage Door Company, Inc, an Arizona based company that specializes in garage doors, would like to make local residents aware of their 24 hour garage door repair in Phoenix, Mesa and so on. The company offers assistance with garage door installation, repair and more. Their experience, commitment to providing excellent service and their fully licensed team (combined with a nearly flawless track record) makes A Better Garage Door Company one of the best choices for anyone in search of an Arizona garage door company.

Making sure a garage door is installed properly is very important. A Better Garage Door Company says, "Your garage is a safe space for your precious car and can offer extra storage room. If you choose the right garage door, it can come with many perks for your home. Your door ensures that everything that needs to stay in is kept in and everything else is kept out. While a garage door is a fantastic addition to a house, it comes with some safety concerns if you or any of your housemates are not taking the right precautions. Keeping your garage in the best condition and being aware of possible hazards will allow you to get the most out of your door while avoiding unwanted accidents.?

Even a safety assured and certified garage door can still be prone to disastrous accidents when left unattended for too long. This is why it is important for everyone to know exactly what to do if a fault is noticed, however minor it may be. On the other hand, an issue may arise that requires the immediate intervention of a 24-hour garage door service in Phoenix. In such cases, it is important to call a garage door company like A Better Garage Door Company as soon as possible to handle the issue. It is also important to observe certain safety rules around a garage door. Running, walking or playing around a garage door that is opening or closing is generally quite dangerous ? as is hiring an unqualified garage door contractor to install or repair one.

A Better Garage Door Company recommends inspecting a garage door regularly to ensure that all its working parts are in good condition. This means looking at components like springs, cables, rollers and pulleys. It is also important to know all the emergency features a door has before such an event actually occurs. Knowing how to work the emergency release feature on a garage door, for example, will help ensure everyone involved is prepared to leap straight into action. It is usually better to call a professional whenever possible, however, and A Better Garage Door Company is always open and ready to come to the rescue of garage door owners in Phoenix or Mesa.

A number of people have left excellent reviews of the company. A review from Jules says, ?My garage door, over the years, occasionally fell off the tracks, and most recently it took 4 - 6 times to force the opener to close the door fully. A sagging worn out door was the problem, causing stress on the motor. The technician said he could fix it. A brace was added to the door, and a thorough tune-up was done. The door works great! I first thought I would need a new motor, but after going with his advice I saved a couple hundred bucks! He was very knowledgeable, answering all my questions with friendly explanations rather than one word answers.?

Melanie has similarly high praise to share about the garage door company. Her review says, ?A part on my garage door screw drive was faulty. This company responded very quickly and replaced the part that cannot be bought at home repair stores. While he did make recommendations for replacement or repairs that may be needed in the future, he didn?t make the ?hard sell.? Very professional, on time, and no hard sell for things that may be needed in the future. I?m very satisfied with the entire experience.?
