

New Portfolio Prophet Review Demonstrates Its Effectiveness For ETF Trading

The Portfolio Prophet has announced that they have received a highly positive Portfolio Prophet review. The review can be accessed at <http://portfolioprophetreview.org/> and it includes a detailed explanation of what the program is and how it can help people build a new income stream to supplement their existing income, or even use it as a full time job.

"We are so happy about the independent review," says Bill Poulos, creator of the Portfolio Prophet Program. "We have worked very hard in creating this program, and we believe it is highly effective and will make a huge difference in the lives of amateur and professional investors alike. To receive recognition about that is wonderful, and we are very grateful to the authors, who have taken the time to test our product and write so positively about it."

As can be seen in the new review (you can visit this site for a complete review here), the Portfolio Prophet program is essentially a self-study program for investors. It is mainly geared towards those who invest in Exchange Traded Funds or ETFs. Through the program, people can choose an investment strategy ranging from aggressive to conservative, and learn about entry and exit signals that are applicable to their preferred method of investment. Furthermore, it teaches readers about the unique Portfolio Prophet Trading Method, which is perfect for people who have no background knowledge on trading, or who want to completely overhaul their existing investment strategy.

Bill Poulos has gained success by working together with his son Greg Poulos, sharing their trading strategies with the world.

"We have always believed that success is something to be shared," explains Greg Poulos. "We understand that when we make smart investment decisions, we do not lose out by explaining the thought process behind those decisions to others. This is what we try to do through the different programs we have created."

Indeed, the Portfolio Prophet Program is one in a long line of programs created by the father and son duo.

Their Profits Run website provides information for various investment strategies, including stocks, options, Forex and ETFs. The Poulos' have always believed that being successful is down to using simple strategies that pay off big, without having unrealistic expectations of success.

It should be noted that trading or investing is always risky. There is no way to know exactly what markets will or will not do. However, by using smart investment strategies, such as those offered by the Portfolio Prophet program, it becomes possible for people to make less risky choices. What sets the Portfolio Prophet Program apart, however, is the fact that it is so flexible. People who read the review will understand that this is the strength and the core of the program itself. People have personal preferences when it comes to taking investment risks, and the program allows for these preferences to be incorporated. Essentially, it is a learning process, rather than a blueprint that cannot be moved away from.
