Businesses in Australia have to comply with tax laws set by the Australian Tax Office (ATO) or else they may be subject to penalties or may have to undergo an audit. The ATO has a specific focus on improving compliance among small businesses, which make up the majority of businesses in Australia. In 2019-20, the ATO conducted over 24,000 small business audits and reviews, resulting in over $1.2 billion in liabilities raised

Small businesses are often focused on specialising in and serving clients in their industry and may not have the operations budget or profit margins to justify having a full-time tax professional on their team to handle their compliance. The solution is a turnkey professional and experienced accounting firm, like Mobbs and Company, that can be consulted when needed to cover all the regulatory requirements enforced by the ATO.

The Sunshine Coast accounting firm has a wealth of experience and expertise in helping businesses navigate tax laws and regulations. On its Google Business Profile, one reviewer talks about how Mobbs and Company helped it decrypt all its overseas accounting records that were exclusively in French and work through complicated family trust structures. Another client talks about how after their primary accountant became unresponsive, Jamie and his team at Mobbs and Company came in and salvaged their tax filings even while working completely remotely.

Mobbs and Company's customised solutions serve each client based on their unique financial situation. Its offerings for businesses include tax compliance services, cash flow forecasts, business consulting, payroll tax, GST accounting, BAS (Business Activity Statement) preparation, Fringe Benefits Tax information, and business tax advice. As tax accountants, Mobbs and Company can help clients with individual or company tax returns, late tax returns, tax audits, general tax advice, taxation planning, tax compliance and obligations, specialty taxes, and more.

Clients can pick and choose the services they need, or they can even take advantage of Mobbs and Company's end-to-end bookkeeping, financial analysis, and tax planning services.
