Lea Dewberry from Perth Focus On Flooring says, ?When it comes to wood flooring in Perth, there is no better choice than our Perth timber flooring. We guarantee all of our timber floorings are from sustainable sources and offer the best quality natural timber for your home. We have the largest range of engineered flooring and a wide variety of timber types to choose from so you can be sure to find the perfect product for your needs.?

Their team of experts specialise in helping homeowners discover the ideal solution for their home. They can help the customer choose from a broad range of flooring products, including both engineered and solid flooring alternatives. They also offer expert installation approaches to ensure that the new floor will be perfectly suitable for the home.

They want to point out that engineered timber flooring has several distinct characteristics. First, it is less susceptible to the moisture and temperature changes commonly experienced in Western Australia. Second, it offers the bold and distinctive characteristics of real timber. Third, timber flooring can be sanded and recoated on a regular basis to bring back its original appearance. Fourth, it is produced using sustainable and renewable timber. Fifth, it is DIY friendly. It can be installed and then walked on immediately.

Engineered timber flooring is made up of three layers of timber. The top layer is 100 percent real timber that is finished with UV acrylic or UV natural oiled coatings. It also has a high-density multilayered and cross-ply core. It is also provided with a back layer and all of that are fused together by applying the latest quality heat cured adhesive process. This manufacturing process ensures minimal expansion or shrinkage.

When it comes to laminate flooring Perth homeowners can also go to Perth Focus On Flooring. Timber laminate flooring is a kind of floor covering that provides the best possible wear resistance. This is therefore ideal for places in the home or building with high traffic. Laminate flooring is also ideal for those who are DIY enthusiasts because it is easy to install. The homeowner can simply follow the installation instructions provided by the manufacturer. This is typically through a licensed glueless locking system.

Also available from Perth Focus On Flooring is the bamboo flooring, which is the most popular natural flooring for homes in Australia. Bamboo flooring is produced in various ways to provide a distinct appearance for each particular flooring. It can be installed as a direct system or a floating floor in Perth. The most common type of installation system for bamboo flooring is the solid strand woven compressed glueless locking system. It tends to be the most popular because of its unique aesthetics, unmatched hardness, and its tough surface that is resistant to scratching and stains. This bamboo flooring is available in smooth finish or hand scraped textures and is pre-finished, enabling it to be installed and walked on immediately. It is a great choice for those who prefer to do DIY flooring because of its patented self locking system that is glueless but strong and durable.
