December 14, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Speaking Pieces, a business in McDonough, GA, is proud to announce that they now also offer waist trainers for those in the Atlanta area. These trainers are designed to help people achieve a slimmer waist. The trainers are already proving to be very popular.

"We are so happy to have added the waist trainers to our selection of products," says Sonji Martin from Speaking Pieces. "We know people in Georgia want to look fit and we are very pleased to be able to play a part in that."

Waist trainers were made famous by Kim and Khloe Kardashian, who frequently post photographs on Instagram of themselves using them. The waist trainer is wrapped around the lower rib cage and the waist, creating an instant hourglass figure. The Kardashians are not the only celebrities hailing the benefits of these products, so it is no surprise that waist trainers in McDonough GA are becoming increasingly popular.

The Speaking Pieces boutique provides different clothes at different times of the year. In addition to that, they want to play a meaningful role in improving the lives of people in Georgia. For these reasons, they frequently update their stock to meet the particular demands of their customers, as well as offering various special offers. Some of these special offers are discussed on their YouTube video on <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OFn9bZxVi8w>. Other customers are also encouraged to join in on the conversation.

Waist straps are now becoming so popular that various celebrities have started to launch their own lines. One example is Burke-Charvet, who designed a waist trainer specifically for new mothers. The product is designed to encourage the body to lose the post-pregnancy baby weight and to avoid the loose baggy baby skin. Other similar products are designed to assist people during their exercise regimens, causing intense sweating designed to accelerate weight loss and muscle gain.

"Our waist trainers are flying off the shelves," adds Sonji Martin. "We offer some of the cheapest options available on the market today, which certainly aids towards their popularity. But most importantly, we enable the Georgia community to achieve their goals."
