Moreno Valley, CA - Today, J&M Tree Service Moreno Valley is proud to announce its commitment to join the national initiative to plant one billion trees by 2030. The company is joining forces with other organizations and communities to restore forests, combat climate change, and create a more sustainable future for future generations.

This groundbreaking initiative is spearheaded by the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and launched in collaboration with the World Economic Forum. The project aims to restore degraded land and help protect and expand existing forests worldwide, focusing on reforestation, afforestation, and agroforestry.

J&M Tree Service Moreno Valley CEO, Richard Gerry, had this to say about the company's involvement in the project: "We at J&M Tree Service Moreno Valley are incredibly excited to join this amazing initiative. It's an incredible opportunity to do our part to ensure our planet is here for future generations. We look forward to working with local partners and other stakeholders to make this a success."

The company will leverage its extensive experience and expertise in tree care services to contribute meaningfully to this cause. They will also partner with local organizations, schools, businesses, and community groups to carry out planting efforts. As part of their commitment, J&M Tree Service Moreno Valley plans to organize public events over the coming months to educate residents about the importance of reforestation and how they can get involved in the project.

We are committed to doing our part in helping save our planet, which is why we are taking additional steps to ensure that all our services remain eco-friendly.
