

Release Date Announced For Third Book In Star Angel Pentalogy

December 02, 2015

December 02, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Today Black Helm Entertainment announced that it has confirmed the release date for the third book in the "Star Angel" pentalogy, "Dawn of War", and that it will release on December the 9th. "Dawn of War" is the third book in the five book series, and will continue the tale of Jessica Paquin, teen heroine of the "Star Angel" story. Black Helm Entertainment signed author David G McDaniel in the summer of 2015 and is publishing the pentalogy on an accelerated schedule, with the final book expected to release in the late spring of 2016.

"David has them all written," reports CEO of Black Helm, Philip Jepsen. "When we signed with him he was finishing the fifth book, and so we went immediately into the editing process and drew up a release schedule that would get these out very quickly. Turnaround time after a first book and before the second would usually be up to a year. For a typical series of this length, a pentalogy, we would expect a runway of several years before the series would be complete. In this case, on our timetable, we'll have the full series out within a year. From the time we signed David until Book Five is released will be less than twelve months."

Star Angel is a story in the sci-fi/action genre, intended for an all ages audience. It falls into the category of Young Adult, but as with many popular titles written in that category, is suitable for an adult audience as well. The tale is one of a teenage girl, Jessica Paquin, who meets a boy on Earth who falls from the sky. The story begins in modern day Boise, Idaho, and her encounter with the boy triggers a series of events that propel her into an interstellar adventure.

"It's a real rocket ride of an adventure," says Mr. Jepsen. "Sometimes quite literally. Jessica goes through so much to prevail, and by now, on the cusp of Book Three, it's really quite incredible what she's endured. I'm sure the fans will be eager to get this one when it comes out. We're in final preps now and it should land on December the 8th."

Interested parties can contact Mr. Jepsen directly by email, or by submitting questions directly on the Team Star Angel site.
