Arvada Contractor Launches Hail Damage Repair Financing Assistance

April 07, 2023

Arvada, Colorado - April 07, 2023 -
Arvada, CO based RoofTec Precision Exteriors has launched worry-free financing for hail damage done to roofs on the front range in Northern Denver, Colorado. While insurers may offer peace of mind from such events, their policies may not always deliver on these assurances. RoofTec Precision Exteriors can help homeowners learn whether they qualify ? and provide suitable financing options in the event they do not.

Homeowners in Arvada and beyond may be aware of the fact that a roof represents a massive investment, with the price tag associated with repairs or replacements far exceeding what the average person or family can comfortably handle. This makes damage from hail a significant concern. In most cases, however, they may expect this issue to be solved by homeowner?s insurance, but as anyone who has dealt with roof damage can attest, filing a claim is often the first step in a long line of bureaucratic obstacles that will have to be overcome before a roof is paid for.

Previously, a homeowner would have had little choice in this situation but to deal with the matter themselves, a daunting task if they do not have much experience dealing with insurers. Thanks to RoofTec Precision Exteriors? new worry-free financing service, however, it has never been easier to get help with hail damage repair.

?Our process is called ?worry-free? because we handle the entire project in-house, from historical storm reporting and inspection via drone technology to design consultation and project fulfillment,? states a representative from RoofTec Precision Exteriors. ?Our certified roofing experts and insurance claim specialists will guide homeowners through the process of submitting a claim and tackling the specifications from HOAs. If you find yourself dealing with hail damage, visit the financing page on our website to learn how easy it is to get worry-free financing on hail damaged-roof replacement services on The Front Range.?

A solid, dependable roof is a priceless component of every home, and this also means it is one area where homeowners should never have to compromise on. The best way to avoid having to do so after the roof is damaged, the company points out, is to have the help of a professional. This is what RoofTec Precision Exteriors offers: their professional assistance from beginning to end. After hail damages a roof, a customer only needs to let the company know that they need help. A team will then be dispatched to assess the roof in question and create documentation for the insurer.

Colorado homes are particularly prone to hail damage, and this means homeowners cannot hope to simply avoid the problem altogether. It is a matter of ?when,? not ?if? hail will fall in their area, and this carries with it a risk of damage to the roof. As such, it is recommended that homeowners have a trusted professional on call who can minimize how long it takes for repairs to be completed. With RoofTec Precision Exteriors, homeowners get the benefit of top priority installations by experienced contractors. Arguably, many contractors offer this, but the company?s worry-free financing service also eliminates another source of delays ? the hassle of figuring out how to file a claim.

The company states, ?While insurers are aware you live in an area that often sees heavy hail, your insurance policy may actually not cover this type of damage. It is important to check before making a claim. Fortunately, instead of taking on this tedious task yourself, you can simply give us a call to speak with one of our insurance claim specialists. They?ll do all the work for you. Our team will also be along soon to check your roof in person, reviewing past damage and identifying the potential for future damage as well. Your best chance of getting your roof repaired promptly is with us.?

The company?s roof inspection team focuses specifically on hail damage during such jobs. Along with historical storm reporting software, the accuracy of their damage reports is augmented with drone inspection technology. See more here: RoofTecCo.com.
