A water filter business in Beaufort, SC, is proud to announce that they are now owned by a disabled veteran. They are also now part of the SDVOSB (Service-Disabled Veteran-Owned Small Business) program. As such, when someone decides to buy the AquaOx, they are supporting the brave men and women who fought for this country.

"During my time in the military, I gained a tremendous respect for life in general," says Michael Corcoran, the new owner of AquaOx Distribution. "One thing I learned was that, in order for life to be sustainable, water has to be available and it must be clean. When I was injured and knew I would no longer be able to go back into active service, I knew I would have to do something that would still support this basic necessity of life. I'm so happy to have been able to purchase AquaOx, as I feel this really makes a positive contribution to the lives of the people I vowed to protect."

The AquaOx is a whole house water filtration system. It helps to provide clean and safe water to an entire house. This includes everything from the kitchen sink to the showers and from the garden hose to the washing machine. Thanks to the filter, all water sources provide purified water. It has a 1.2 million gallon capacity and is designed to remove 99.9% of all toxins, heavy metals and other contaminants. The system effectively guarantees water is clean and safe to drink throughout a property.

The system itself has been very positively received by the people who have purchased it. "The difference this system makes is tremendous," says Michael Reiber. "The coffee tastes better, the food that is cooked with water tastes better. You can smell the difference before you drink it. A glass of water doesn't have to smell like a swimming pool."

Those who also want to support the SDVOSB program can now buy the AquaOx on BuyVeteran.com. In so doing, they will actively support work done with combat veterans, helping them to reintegrate into the society to which they gave so much.
