April 03, 2023

April 03, 2023 -
Leander, TX ? Leander Tree Experts are proud to announce the launch of their new tree preservation service, designed to help protect trees from construction site damage and destruction. The new service is the result of a collaboration between the company's CEO, Templeton Harlan, and lead researcher Dr. Julie Smith.

The service involves implementing a comprehensive approach that combines science and technology with innovative tree care methods. The process begins with a detailed assessment of the construction site and its surrounding environment. From there, an in-depth tree survey is conducted, followed by a review of existing tree health and safety standards. Once the assessment is complete, a custom plan is created to meet the project's specific needs while minimizing any impacts on tree health.

"We are thrilled to be launching this new service, which will help ensure that trees are protected in even the most challenging construction environments," said Harlan. "Our team has worked hard to develop a unique approach that will not only provide long-term benefits to our clients but also help preserve the local environment for generations to come."

Dr. Smith echoed Harlan's sentiments: "This service ensures that all steps are taken to protect trees during construction, including proper pruning techniques, soil management practices, and pest control measures. In addition, we have extensive experience in dealing with difficult terrain and soils, so we can offer solutions that will ensure any tree's long-term health and survival."

In addition to offering individualized plans for each project, Leander Tree Experts provides ongoing monitoring throughout the construction process to ensure trees remain healthy and safe. This includes regular check-ins with the client and visual inspections of the site and its trees. The company also offers guidance and advice on maintaining healthy trees during construction and beyond.

"Our goal is to ensure our clients can get the best possible results for their projects without sacrificing tree health or safety in the process," said Harlan. "We believe this service represents a significant step forward in providing sustainable solutions for developers and builders who want to do right by the environment."

Leander Tree Experts is committed to delivering the best possible solutions for each project they work on while ensuring the highest level of care for all trees involved. The company looks forward to helping more developers and builders create a better tomorrow by preserving tree health today.
