San Antonio, TX ? San Antonio Tree Pros, a premier tree care firm in the area, has recently partnered with the South Texas Environmental Education Center (STEC) to develop and implement a tree-based curriculum for San Antonio schools. The partnership seeks to expand students? knowledge of trees, their importance to the environment, and how to properly care for them.

The curriculum will be piloted at select elementary and middle schools in San Antonio this upcoming school year before being rolled out to other districts. It will allow students to learn about tree anatomy, its environmental benefits, and how to preserve them. Students will also gain hands-on experience planting trees and caring for those already planted on school grounds.

Chrystal Kelli, CEO of San Antonio Tree Pros, said of the new collaboration, ?We are thrilled to partner with STEC to create a unique and engaging educational experience for young people. Trees are one of the most important parts of our environment, and we must teach young people how to appreciate and look after them. This program is an opportunity to do just that, and we are so excited about its potential!?

San Antonio Tree Pros will provide technical advice and guidance on developing the curriculum, as well as implement any necessary safety procedures for when students are working outdoors with trees. The company will also provide the tools and equipment needed to complete the tasks required by the curriculum.

The new curriculum is part of a more significant effort by STEC and San Antonio Tree Pros to increase education about trees and their importance in the community. The two hope that the curriculum will become part of standard education in San Antonio schools and spark an appreciation and respect for trees in a new generation of Texans.

Kelli added, ?By introducing these concepts to children at an early age, we can shape their attitudes towards trees from a young age so that they grow up understanding why it is so important to take care of them. We believe that our involvement in this project will have a huge impact on the local community, and we are very proud to be part of it.?

San Antonio Tree Pros is committed to collaborating with local organizations such as STEC to support environmental education initiatives in the region. This vital partnership will benefit both sides; while STEC will receive valuable expertise from industry professionals, San Antonio Tree Pros will get to help build a brighter future for their community.
