Austin Dental Works wants to highlight their dental implants service they are offering in Austin, TX, and surrounding areas. Dr. Lindsey Jaros now offers the advanced technology of dental implants to her patients from the Austin area. A dental implant is made up of a metal rod with an artificial root affixed at the top. The implant procedure requires the insertion of the metal rod into the jawbone of the patient. After a few months, the metal will have fused with the bone tissue and that is the time when Dr. Jaros places a porcelain crown on top of the metal rod and this serves as a substitute for a missing tooth. This dental implant is durable and can last for the entire lifetime of the patient.

Dental implants provide an excellent means of replacing one or more teeth, without the inconvenience of dentures and bridges. Best of all, the dental implants look like natural teeth and also function like natural teeth. The technology, training and skills of dental professionals like Dr. Jaros ensure that the dental implant procedure is safe. In addition, the technology for dental implants has already existed for quite some time. It has now evolved into an advanced and specialized technology.

Dental implants offer various advantages for dental patients. First of all, these implants are permanent because the titanium rods are embedded into the jawbone and the implant functions like a natural tooth. Second, the implants are durable and can last for many years, frequently for the lifetime of the patient. Third, dental implants are easy to care for because they can be cared for just like a natural tooth, by brushing and flossing every day.

Unlike dentures, bridges, or partials that can slip and move around inside the mouth of a patient, implants will not move at all. Patients are therefore assured they can avoid the possible embarrassment of denture or any dental appliance slipping out when they speak or eat. Lastly, dental implants can enhance the quality of life of the patient because implants function much like a natural tooth. This means that the patient can eat and enjoy whatever foods he or she would want to eat without any worry. Furthermore, because the dental implants appear just like natural teeth, the patient can confidently smile, which is great for their self-esteem.

It should be pointed out, however, that there are a few risks that a few people may experience from the dental implant procedure. These are: an allergic reaction; galvanic toxicity; infection; titanium corrosion; sinus problems; damage to blood vessels, nerves, and/or teeth; and dental implant rejection. Despite these risks, the large majority of the patients who received dental implants were extremely satisfied with their results.

Founded in 2019, Austin Dental Works is located in central Austin, TX, at The Triangle, which is only minutes away from downtown Austin and the University of Texas Campus. At this dental practice, they have state-of-the-art dental equipment and apply modern practices to make sure they provide the highest quality dental care in a relaxed and comfortable environment. Dr. Lindsey Jaros and her team provide unparalleled care to a large number of satisfied clients.

Currently, they have an overall rating of 4.9 out of 5 stars on Google after receiving almost 500 reviews. In a recent review, Zach J. gave them a five star rating and said, ?Very happy with Austin Dental Works. Dr. Jaros is very knowledgeable and takes the time to explain everything thoroughly. I?m also impressed with their communication before the appointment. There were several automated appointment reminders and Tiffanie went out of her way to check with my insurance and let me know exactly how much my co-pay would be in advance. 5 Stars.?
