

Source Technology Sponsoring Kotlin Conference 2023

April 06, 2023

April 06, 2023 -
Source Technology, part of Source Group International are proud to be sponsors of KotlinConf?23. KotlinConf is the world?s largest event devoted to the Kotlin programming language. Organized by JetBrains, it is the place for the community to gather and discuss all things Kotlin.

KotlinConf?23 is set to return for its fourth edition this April, taking place in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, on April 12?14, 2023. It will feature a variety of sessions and workshops from industry leaders and provide plenty of networking opportunities at the expo hall.

In July 2011, JetBrains unveiled Kotlin, a multi-purpose language for multiplatform development, including Android, iOS, backends, and other targets. 450+ independent contributors are improving the core language, and thousands are contributing to the broader Kotlin ecosystem. Kotlin has more than 4.8M users globally.

In November Source Technology?s Meetup community, On Kotlin, became members of the JetBrains user group support program. Their most recent meetup welcomed Andrey Breslav & David Denton as keynote speakers. Those interested can find the recording of this event here.

On Kotlin is organically growing with a community of 300+ since launch in late 2022. Their next meet up will be announced soon, look out for updates and how to sign up here.

As a conference partner, Source Technology will be supporting the event by contributing to its success through various means such as sponsorships, promotions, and networking opportunities. They are excited to be a part of this esteemed conference and contribute to the advancement of Kotlin globally.
