Rehab Near Me Is Helping Americans Find the Best Inpatient or Outpatient Substance Abuse Treatment Programs

May 04, 2023

Los Angeles, California - May 04, 2023 -
Rehab Near Me, a nationwide directory of the best rehab centers for drugs and alcohol in the United States, is urging Americans struggling with substance abuse to seek assistance by calling its hotline number.

A cursory look at the substance abuse statistics is enough to raise alarms about just how prevalent the problem has become over the decades. To add context, the number of drug overdose deaths in the United States since the year 2000 is almost up to one million with over 70,000 deaths every year and a year-on-year increase of 4%.

The substance abuse epidemic is not only limited to adults. According to the National Center for Drug Abuse Statistics, around 8.33% of all 12- to 17-year-olds have reported using drugs within the last month. Coupled with the rise in the use of opioids, teenage opioid addiction has become a cause for concern for families all over the country with over 5% of all 12th graders reporting they have abused opioids other than heroin at least once.

?There is no saying when or why one might get sucked down into the downward spiral that has already destroyed countless lives,? says the spokesperson for Rehab Near Me. ?It is a cross that no one should have to bear. While efforts are being made for better education among the general population, crawling out of that hole remains a challenge for those who have already succumbed to their demons. If you or someone you love is struggling with substance abuse, know that there are treatment options available, both inpatient and outpatient, that can help you get a new chance at life. Call our hotline number to speak to a representative for any of our many partner treatment centers. For some, outpatient treatment is a completely viable option for conquering their addiction. Patients can opt for day programs, intensive outpatient programs (IOP), and continuing care. Throughout the patient?s recovery journey at an outpatient program, they undergo therapy, counseling, and group sessions at a facility or clinic. The biggest benefit that outpatient drug treatment programs offer is the ability to continue living with one?s loved ones or supportive family while the treatment is ongoing.

Patients who need medically supervised addiction treatment can sign up for inpatient drug rehab, also known as residential treatment. Designed to treat severe cases of addiction, patients are required to stay in a rehab facility for the duration of the program. Compared to outpatient rehab, an inpatient rehab program is more intensive and structured with several one-on-one or group treatments and therapies administered during the day.

The patient?s choice will be dictated by the kind of programs that an inpatient treatment center is offering as they may vary based on the kind of substance abuse that they are focused on. However, all live in drug treatment centers provide meals, a room to sleep in, regular therapy sessions, and continuous support supervised by medical professionals.

The spokesperson for Rehab Near Me then talks about what patients should look for when choosing an inpatient rehab treatment program by saying, ?First, you must consider the length of the program. We realize it is not easy to upend your entire life and get admitted into rehab for a long duration. However, given the disastrous long-term effects of addiction, it is important to give yourself all the time that you possibly can for recovery. Next, your pick will also depend on your insurance coverage if you are seeking treatment at an in-network facility. You can also opt for facilities that offer payment plans. Finally, you might also want to consider a facility that caters to your specific demographic such as veterans, adolescents, and members of the LGBTQ+ community.?
