They usually provide tropical landscaping for Southwest Ranches, Pembroke Pines, and other places in Southern Florida. This kind of landscaping makes use of exotic plants that allows the people in the garden feel like they are on vacation on a sunny beach or a lush rainforest. These plants provide that jungle-like ambiance that provides for a unique home landscape with plants that have leaves that are uniquely shaped and various colors from bright flowers. Plants to be used include palms, flowering trees, shade trees, accent trees, shrubs, vines, ground covers, ornamental grasses, perennials, annuals and other accent plants.

The Southwest Ranches is located on the eastern border of the Florida Everglades. It is 15 miles southwest of Fort Lauderdale and is one of the most attractive places in South Florida due to its high quality of life, natural amenities, and unique features. Meanwhile, Pembroke Pines is a suburb of Ford Lauderdale and has earned the reputation of being one of the best places to live in Florida. It provides an urban suburban mixed ambiance and most of the residents there own their homes. Many young professionals live in Pembroke Pines, which has an abundance of parks and coffee shops. Its public schools are also considered to be above average.

Commercial landscaping is another important service provided by EPS Landscaping & Tree Service LLC in Broward County. This kind of landscaping service is often requested by owners of office buildings, homeowners association (HOA) complexes, department stores, strip malls, and other commercial establishments. This is essential because an impressive landscape in front and around a building can make an excellent first impression for visitors and potential clients. It may also contribute to better employee morale for the business. It has been noted that commercial buildings with shabby landscapes and facade attract less customers compared to establishments with eye-catching landscapes.

The plants and trees that are placed in front and around the commercial building can also offer the benefit of better privacy and security of the company. Furthermore, an attractive commercial landscape provides a hint to customers that the business really cares about the environment. This tends to attract more customers because more and more people are realizing the importance of environmental protection and therefore prefer businesses with environmentally-friendly practices. In addition, the plants and trees around the commercial building can also help with improving air quality, providing more oxygen, which offers health benefits for all visitors, clients and employees.

EPS also offers specific tree services, such as tree pruning, tree planting, and more. They have tree cutting specialists who are experienced and knowledgeable in finding any signs of disease or dead branches and get rid of them. Tree trimming and pruning services are important to remove overgrowths and ensure that trees are not too dense, which can affect other plants.
