Atlanta, Georgia - April 27, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Esteemed personal injury attorney in Marietta, Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., leads a Georgia-based legal practice that has achieved significant success over the years in securing compensation for clients injured in accidents. This experience has instilled in the law firm a deep understanding of the need for proficiency in various facets of personal injury law to effectively litigate the cases presented to them.

The law firm's founder, Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., states, "We refer to them as accidents, but more often than not, these incidents result from someone else's wrongful conduct, negligence, or lack of action. Victims injured in such circumstances have a legal right to be made whole again. Achieving this necessitates a comprehensive understanding of several critical areas of personal injury law, a subject I am well-qualified to discuss due to my firm's extensive personal injury litigation experience."

Attorney Nugent initially emphasized that to obtain a favorable outcome in a personal injury claim, it must be demonstrated that the client's injuries were sustained without any fault on their part. The claimant and their legal team must also prove that they have experienced physical (bodily), mental, or emotional (psychological) harm. He further explained that a personal injury claim does not consider any associated property damage. While most lawyers attempt to negotiate a favorable settlement, if unsuccessful, a lawsuit may be brought before a judge. This Georgia attorney also highlighted the various forms of compensation a plaintiff can seek in a personal injury claim, such as reimbursement for medical expenses, lost income, and other costs directly resulting from the injury. Additionally, compensation may be awarded for pain and suffering, loss of future income, future medical care expenses, disrupted or altered plans, and punitive damages.

The founding attorney also discussed the diverse causes of personal injuries that frequently result in legal compensation claims. Among the most common are injuries sustained in automobile accidents, an area in which his law firm specializes. Another prevalent type of personal injury accident is slips and falls, which often occur when businesses, property owners, or tenants fail to exercise reasonable care, leading to injury. Other personal injuries that frequently lead to legal claims include assaults, medical malpractice, defamation, workplace accidents, defective products, and nursing home violations. Attorney Nugent emphasized that he is highly qualified to assist injured parties in pursuing claims in all these areas of personal injury law.
