Hilton Head, SC - Vacationers to South Carolina will find enough to do with the kids year-round, as seen by the many activities featured in 101 Things to Do in Hilton Head magazine.

The free visitors' magazine boasts several family-friendly activities on the island, making it an excellent destination for vacationers of all ages and interests. In addition, Hilton Head is packed with exciting attractions, from its beautiful beaches to its parks, museums, and golf courses.

Among the Best Things To Do in Hilton Head is visiting Adventure Cove, along Folly Beach. It's a go-to spot for kids' birthday parties and has the biggest arcade in the neighborhood. South Carolina's coastal town of Myrtle Beach, a popular tourist destination, is another must-see. Long stretches of sandy beach, pleasant temperatures year-round, and a plethora of exciting things to do all contribute to its fame.

Beach parks in Hilton Head Island are also recommended by 101 Things to Do Magazine. The beach at Coligny Coastline Park is one of the best in the area, and the park also features changing facilities, restrooms, outdoor showers, and different types of seating.

Visiting the Coastal Discovery Museum is also recommended as an enjoyable activity for the whole family by the Best Visitors Magazine. Visitors of all ages will be enthralled by the variety of exhibits on show inside and outside this Hilton Head attraction. Plus, the museum provides an excellent opportunity to learn more about the region's natural history.

When it comes to things to do by the water, dolphin-watching excursions are popular in Hilton Head. As they cruise around the island's seas, tourists may spot Atlantic bottlenose dolphins, birds, and other native animals.

Also, visiting Hilton Head is only made complete by visiting its golf courses. There are 18 holes of championship golf at Sea Pines Golf Club, and the course features three different sets of tees to accommodate golfers of all skill levels.
