May 10, 2023 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Shawnee, OK based Extreme Inflatables Inc is ready to deliver a range of bouncers, slides, obstacle courses and other types of inflatables to local customers. Currently, water slides are proving to be among the company's top products, but customers are welcome to choose any rental or accessory that suits their event's needs. Extreme Inflatables understands that customers like to have options when they go shopping for the right rental. Parties, for instance, can be themed, either by color, subject or other signifier, and a rental may stand out in an unpleasant manner if not chosen carefully. On the other hand, an event's guests (such as children) may be fairly picky about the type of entertainment they like to participate in. Whatever the case may be, the company is pleased to confirm that it boasts an inventory that is as extreme as its name.

When selecting a party rental provider, it is also important to ensure that rental delivery and set up is being handled by an experienced team. While some may assume there is no way to ascertain this without giving the company a chance, it can often be helpful to look up what others have to say about the service in question. See more about Extreme Inflatables here: <https://goo.gl/maps/UzZ8UfEci8Yxokr87>.

One customer shares, "Very patient and thorough while explaining all of the prices and set up process. It was very refreshing to speak to a company that has an end goal of not just making a buck but genuinely wanting to make their customers happy."

Others are quick to praise the company's flexibility and willingness to accommodate customers wherever possible. As another review says, "I've used Extreme Inflatables for my son's last two birthdays. They are flexible, friendly and very easy to deal with. They delivered to Tulsa for a reasonable fuel charge, and they brought a standard bouncy as well as a 3-in-1, because I wasn't sure the 3-in-1 would fit in our front yard. Their products are clean, in good shape and super easy to use. I recommend them highly."

Many, the company comments, prefer to use a single rental provider once they find one that meets their needs, both in terms of products and customer service. Extreme Inflatables aims to be that provider for every customer it works with, and the company's investment in this goal is now evident at every stage of the rental process.

To begin with, customers are always welcome to call the company directly if they have any concerns regarding a rental. In most cases, the company says such calls have to do with either safety, power or space requirements, and it is a fairly straightforward process to share details regarding a rental's operational parameters in order to reassure worried parents and other types of customers. However, on occasion, a customer may have questions that would not fit on a typical FAQ page. Fortunately, the team at Extreme Inflatables is up to this task as well.

"You might live on the border or just outside our service area," the company suggests, "prompting you to question whether our services apply to your area. Similarly, your home or property might be difficult to find or be located on unusual terrain, making you wonder whether we will arrive on time to set up and allow your event to proceed on schedule. Whatever an issue may be, we always encourage customers to call the Extreme Inflatables office directly for immediate assistance."

According to the company, it is not uncommon for customers to call in simply asking for advice on choosing a rental. While this may seem an easy question that does not merit the input of a professional, Extreme Inflatables seeks to treat every customer's event with respect, so it will always be willing to help. The company does not distinguish between "large" and "small" degrees of assistance "the customer always gets what they need."

Customers looking for the best inflatables and other party equipment in Shawnee as well as the surrounding areas are welcome to contact the company today to place an order. More information can be found on the company's official website.
