December 10, 2015

December 10, 2015 -
Coronado, California based company, Perfectly Vivid, has announced their first official YouTube video, which showcases the unique features of their tactical flashlight. The video, which can be seen at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=9FqTiY_u6aM, shows the flashlight in use, and fully explains all of the benefits including its durability and the hours of use offered.

Developer of the flashlight, Dr. Christopher Vogelmann, states, "We were trying to determine the best way to explain the many benefits of our tactical flashlight, and we thought that there is no better way than to actually show people what it can do." Vogelmann points out that the flashlight is the perfect accessory for anyone who needs to venture out at night such as dog walkers and emergency personnel, but that it is also good for industrial maintenance workers because of its relatively small size.

"You can easily carry it in your pocket," explains Dr. Vogelmann. "This makes it perfect for anyone, mechanics, maintenance workers, etc., who need to get themselves into small spaces, and the lighting is great for all types of jobs."

Vogelmann states that many customers carry the flashlight in their vest or jacket pocket. The LED lighting provides more than 100,000 hours of use, and is crafted from aircraft grade aluminum. Designed to be durable and tough, its reliability and multifunctionality is featured on the new YouTube video.

The video outlines the durability, showing viewers just how tough the flashlight can be, and also gives an idea of the type of lighting that it provides, and the extent that the lighting can reach. Vogelmann states that the company decided to release the video as a means of giving consumers as much information as possible about the product, and in a format that they could best comprehend.

More about the company can be seen on their official Facebook page at https://www.facebook.com/perfectlyvivid/?fref=ts. The company states that they will use the Facebook page to announce further video releases as they are available, and also to keep customers updated on any new
