A business in Jandakot, WA, Australia, has announced that they are celebrating the fact that it has been 12 years since they have completed their first batch of polyurethane foam blocks. The blocks were created at a state of the art factory located in Jandakot, WA. This facility remains wholly independent, without any foreign ownership investors arrangements or outside investors.

"We started as a small company with just five members of staff, but over half a century of experience between us," says Shaun Westwood from Future Foams. "Twelve years later, and we have grown into one of the most respected foam manufacturers in the area. And we always continue to innovate, while at the same time maintaining the same excellent level of service to our clients."

Future Foams is known for their full commitment to customer service. They are respected for their competitive pricing, speed of service, and flexibility in terms of meeting their customers' needs. In 2006, they were awarded the Supplier of the Year Award from the Furnishing Association of WA.

The Perth based foam manufacturer is constantly improving their product range, to provide solutions for an ever changing market. They have recently developed a new foam grade which is suitable for projects where there is a need for high density foam. This new grade also has a fire retardant added so it is suitable for commercial applications.

The work completed by Future Foams has always been highly respected. "I would highly recommend Future Foams to any commercial or residential builder, for any upcoming projects where there is a requirement to use polystyrene and/or foam products," says Frank Cestnik, General Manager of Dencona Pty Ltd. "Justin and the team at Future Foams have been our preferred supplier for the past 9 years. Over this time, they have proven to be reliable and efficient in their service, and always willing to go the extra mile for our business. On some occasions, we have had unrealistic time frames that we then placed upon them, but they have always been very accommodating and appreciative of our business needs."
