"There was nothing more heartbreaking than to watch your own daughter lower her head in public because she was embarrassed by some facial sun spots she had developed. It was her own graduation and she was shying away from pictures," recalled Meza. "That is why I went our of my way to make sure that our company had a product that would fade embarrasing spots, so that other daughters, wives, and family members could shine confidenlty during their important moments. I can now say, 'mission accomplished', as my daughter is now stands tall, glowing, front and center in all our family photos."
