

Toronto Functional Medicine Centre Explains What to Expect in a Patient?s First IV Therapy Toronto Session

July 31, 2023

TORONTO, ON - July 31, 2023 -

Toronto Functional Medicine Centre in Toronto, ON, Canada, has explained in a new article what people can expect in a patient?s first IV therapy Toronto session. It is important to note that at this functional medicine centre, tailor-fitted strategies can be used to take care of major health issues, particularly those that are related to depression symptoms, immune function, mineral deficiencies, thyroid conditions, low energy levels, and low iron levels. Because of their application of functional medicine principles, the clinic customizes their IV drip treatment based on the individual?s biological needs.

IV therapy is the administration of fluids directly into the vein of the patient. This allows fluids and nutrients to be accessed immediately by the body through direct insertion to the circulatory system instead of having to go through the digestive system. At the Toronto Functional Medicine Centre, they can offer: customized IV drips like, the Max Hydration Drip or the Post exercise amino acid infusion for rehydration and recovery after strenuous exercise, the Energizer for alleviating fatigue, High-Dose Vitamin C for weakened immune systems, Detoxifying IV Drip for detoxifying the body from free radicals, Relaxation IV drip, and more.

Therapeutic doses of vitamins, when combined with important lifestyle changes and when administered regularly, may benefit health in various ways. These include: the alleviation of electrolyte imbalance that may be caused by dehydration; improvements to cellular health; optimal hydration after physical exercise; better muscle recovery after heavy athletic performances; alleviation of a hangover symptom, particularly brain fog; provision of essential vitamins for boosting blood cell production; mineral replenishments; and more.

During an IV Lounge visit, a new patient can expect a number of things. A new patient will need to attend an initial consultation with their health care team. A comprehensive diagnostic session will be held to assess the patient?s medical history, current allergies, genetics, and lifestyle. The patient?s major health issues will also be discussed and they will recommend appropriate functional medicine lab tests. The risks of IV therapy will also be discussed.

On the scheduled day of the first drip session, it is important to note that the health care team will compound the fluid to be used using natural ingredients. No preservatives are added, which is why they are only prepared on the day they will be used. The patient will be welcomed by a team member who will guide the patient to the IV Lounge. They will make sure the patient is seated comfortably and before administering the infusions, they will check the patient?s vital signs, including heart rate and blood pressure levels.

During the infusion therapy session, the patient will be closely watched by a medical doctor, nurse practitioner, and or naturopathic doctor to ensure safety. From time to time, a health care provider will check on the IV tubes and vitals throughout the session. If the patient feels pain at the treatment site, they can adjust the IV flow. After the infusion session is completed, a team member will carefully remove the IV and apply gentle pressure on the treatment site to minimize bleeding or bruising. The patient will also be provided with after-care tips.
