Atlanta, Georgia - July 07, 2023 -
The Mabra Law Firm, which is based in Atlanta, GA, and offers car accident attorney services has recently explained how a car accident lawsuit works in Atlanta and other places in Georgia. This is essential particularly for an accident victim who wasn?t at fault for the incident and wants to get compensated. The funds that can be obtained from the settlement can be used for medical expenses and lost wages from not being able to work while in the hospital and while recovering. Furthermore, the accident victim may not have just experienced physical injuries but also experienced pain and suffering.

Ronnie Mabra from The Mabra Law Firm says, ?If you weren?t at fault for your accident, you probably wondered how you will be compensated with a car accident settlement. The car accident settlement process may be confusing, but your car accident claim will help recover compensation for your medical bills, vehicle damages, lost wages, and pain and suffering. The best way to understand how a car accident settlement works is to work with an accident lawyer.?

The goal for the claim is an accident settlement, which is an agreement where the at-fault party compensates the victim. In the typical settlement agreement, the injured victim agrees to release the at-fault party from future financial liability in exchange for a certain amount of money. In many cases, it is the insurance company of the liable party who pays the settlement amount to the injured accident victim. However, for those cases where the insurance policy is not big enough to pay for the settlement amount, the legally liable party will need to pay for the amount out-of-pocket. Car accident victims need to be careful when agreeing to a settlement because once it has been signed, the parties can no longer change their minds. That is why accident victims should be careful and seek the help of an auto accident lawyer before agreeing to anything. The accident lawyer can make sure the accident victim will get a fair settlement.

It is important to note that the insurance firm of the at-fault party will usually initiate an investigation. This is to minimize the amount of compensation they will need to pay. That is why accident victims are advised not to make any statement to the insurance adjuster and to the insurance company until they have consulted with a car accident lawyer. The personal injury attorney will also need to initiate an investigation of the incident to help with the accident victim?s case. This will include: taking pictures and gathering evidence at the accident scene; taking photos of the injuries; tracking all expenses; obtaining a copy of the police report; referring you to a doctor to treat the injuries; and speaking to witnesses.

The personal injury lawyer can also help in determining the settlement amount, which will vary depending on a number of factors. It is important to understand the medical condition of the victim and the additional health care that may be needed later on before reaching a settlement. That is why it is vital to consult with a personal injury lawyer to ensure all options for the claim are explored.

In the event that both parties are unable to reach a settlement agreement, that is the time to file a personal injury lawsuit. Only a small percentage of cases end up in court. Nevertheless, it is important to the car accident attorney to be prepared to take the case to trial if necessary.
