

VideoXtreme Bonus Launches to Educate Marketers About AdWords for Video

December 10, 2015

December 10, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

With the effectiveness of Facebook advertising on the wane, online marketing professionals Justin Sardi and Neil Napier explored new avenues to drive traffic to their websites. Over time, they discovered an untapped platform in AdWords for Video, which uses YouTube to launch advertising campaigns. After honing their system to yield consistent results, they are offering a training course dubbed VideoXtreme to share their methods with others. When interested parties sign up through Semantic Mastery, additional marketing tools and education are included to further ensure success.

The VideoXtreme training is designed for even beginners to understand and implement quickly. It outlines an easy-to-understand, three-step process to set up a YouTube Channel and begin using it to funnel traffic to websites offering products or services, translating into increased profits. This system is also evergreen and scalable, making it an invaluable tool for any online marketer's wheelhouse. The strategy outlined in this training course is proven to be more effective in the scope and speed of its reach than Facebook ads or traditional SEO methods as well.

As an extra and exclusive bonus, those who join the VideoXtreme course through Semantic Mastery, another winning team of online marketers, gain access to even more valuable training. These bonuses include access to YouTube Mastery, YouTube Silo Academy, Advanced Video Ranking webinar, and 20% off a subscription to the Video Powerhouse Embed Network Service. These additional courses teach the essentials of YouTube SEO, how to incorporate a silo architecture into YouTube channels, and education on advanced ranking techniques ? all of which expand upon and compliment the VideoXtreme training.

Bradley Benner, owner of Big Bamboo Marketing and one of the SEO marketing professionals behind Semantic Mastery, has nothing but compliments for the upcoming launch: "We use YouTube ads for generating leads and as a component of all our sales funnels now. We have found that with proper targeting, our conversion rates are much higher than other advertising platforms, and our costs are extremely low. I have personally worked with Justin Sardi and I can honestly say that he is the best in the business for simplifying the process of Adwords for video."

About VideoXtreme

The VideoXtreme course was developed by online marketing gurus Justin Sardi and Neil Napier. The pair developed a system of YouTube based advertising which yielded stellar results, far exceeding those of Facebook ads. In response to overwhelming demand for education in their methods, Sardi and Napier developed the VideoXtreme training, available through Semantic Mastery.
