Kingston, Jamaica ? Internet Income?s "Next Level Bootcamp? was held November 27 ? 29 at the Internet Income Jamaica training center at 31 Upper Waterloo Road in St. Andrew and was led by Head Trainer Kemar Harris. Participants were introduced to a number of tools, skills, and upper level internet marketing platforms that they could use to boost their earnings and residual income.

While regular internet marketing boot camps by Internet Income Jamaica teach people how to make money online using their skills, the Next Level Boot Camp was designed for those who were already in business, majority were graduates of Internet Income Jamaica?s introductory classes. Topics that were taught included Affiliate Marketing, Website Building, Advanced Freelancing, Dropshipping, and Amazon Marketing.

Students learned how to master doing business on Amazon, Ebay, Commission Junction, and Clickbank; how to build websites for their products and affiliate marketing purposes; and were taught a number of other online marketing skills.

In addition to getting access to detailed material which explained all the topics, the attendees were given hands-on training by Kemar Harris and his assistant trainers. Mr. Harris, a recent UTECH graduate and Internet Income Jamaica graduate, has mastered the art of internet marketing from not only working with Internet Income Jamaica on various projects but also through his very own successful business in the areas of website building and affiliate marketing.

Mr. Harris? team for the boot camp was highly trained in the various topics that were explored and were able to help attendees learn the different areas during the boot camp. In fact, all students were able to set up fully functioning websites and many were beginning to get online attention from potential customers. Also, a number of students were able to offer new services at the end of the boot camp, giving them extra income earning opportunities.

The advent of internet marketing has provided new avenues to earn for both individuals and businesses. Internet Income Jamaica, headed by internet marketing specialists, Alicia and Lorette Lyttle, has made it possible for many Jamaicans to leverage the power of the internet via the Next Level Boot Camp and other training sessions that they have conducted across the island.
