July 24, 2023 -
Long Island-based Newhouse Restoration is inviting local homeowners to find out more about its range of highly rated property damage restoration services.

The veteran-supporting family-owned business offers restoration services following all kinds of emergencies including water damage, mold damage, storm damage, fire and smoke damage, biohazards, and more. The company also offers asbestos removal services for clients who live in older properties and are worried about their safety.

Newhouse Restoration?s water damage restoration services address flooding due to natural events like heavy rainfall or storms as well as plumbing failures such as leaks or appliance malfunctions. The company?s experienced professionals provide comprehensive services that not only quickly get rid of the standing water but also fully restore the area to its pre-damage state by replacing the underlying materials such as wood, insulation, drywall, and more.

For properties that have experienced fire damage, Newhouse Restoration offers smoke damage cleanup services. The company?s process includes boarding up areas, cleaning up soot and smoke damage, sanitizing the air for safe breathing, dehumidifying, and much more. Its expert technicians know how to spot all signs of fire and smoke damage including smoke discoloration on the walls, ceiling, and household goods.

?Depending on whether the fire was caused by the burning of synthetic items, natural structures such as trees and shrubs, or a malfunctioning appliance,? says the spokesperson for Newhouse Restoration, ?we know what kind of residue to look for to identify smoke damage. Touching or inhaling the left-behind residue is a health hazard. It can even yellow strong finishes and tarnish metals. So, we take a holistic approach to correcting fire damage that gets rid of the root cause along with all the symptoms.?

The company?s ability to mobilize quickly and respond to emergencies has also made it one of the top storm damage restoration service providers in Long Island. Newhouse Restoration?s crew members waste no time in arriving on site as any delay can result in further extensive and irreparable damage.

The spokesperson describes the company?s storm damage restoration services by saying, ?We start by collecting your most basic needs that can be salvaged from the affected area. Then, we perform a thorough assessment that determines the extent of the damage and identifies everything that needs to be restored. Next, a plan of action is created to keep you and your family safe and replace, repair, and restore your property to how it was before the disaster. Our dedication is summed up in our singular mission ? to get families back to their homes and normal lives.?

Newhouse Restoration has always lived up to the expectations of the Long Island homeowners they serve. This is evident in the perfect overall rating of 5.0 out of 5.0 on its Google Business Profile from nearly 40 reviews. The company also boasts a perfect 5-star rating on Home Advisor and Proven Expert. Customers praise the company?s professional and communicative crew members, the quick response times, and the quality of the restoration services.

An excerpt from a recent review says, ?Newhouse also coordinated with my insurer which made the process seamless. This was welcomed due to the stress of the situation. Newhouse did such a wonderful job, I hired them to restore the room as well. Newhouse's restoration team was there early every day, worked diligently, cleaned up each night, and had some great suggestions as well. The basement has now been restored and looks better than before.?

Another Long Island homeowner writes, ?The Newhouse Restoration team was so efficient and friendly and very professional. They took a lot of pressure off the decisions that I had to make. Josh Newhouse was able to get us scheduled immediately and was here within hours to start resolving flood issues in my basement. I will suggest Newhouse to anyone that needs safe and professional restoration.?
