July 27, 2023 -
Dry Patrol of Central Ohio is offering homeowners and business owners in Columbus the sanitization and disinfection services they need to fight COVID-19 effectively and affordably.

The company?s infectious disease cleanup services are designed for businesses and residential properties with three levels of needs ? property owners who want to take precautions against future infections, property owners who suspect that there might already be possible contamination, and finally those who have confirmed contamination on their premises and want to make the workplace or home safe for inhabitation again.

Dry Patrol?s precautionary cleaning services are designed to keep properties safe and sanitary for their occupants. For commercial properties, the services are applied during non-business hours to prevent any business interruption.

For properties where contamination is suspected, Dry Patrol?s biohazard cleanup technicians perform a 10-foot down disinfection and sanitization cleaning process to the entire structure which significantly reduces the risk of infection and further contamination.

Finally, for homes or businesses with confirmed COVID-19 cases, Dry Patrol offers a customized disinfecting and sanitizing service tailored to their individual needs in accordance with CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) guidelines and approved methods.

The company?s trained and certified biohazard cleanup technicians perform disinfection services using vaporized Hydrogen Peroxide mist foggers, the industry standard equipment for such situations. They also use cleaners and disinfectants approved by the CDC and registered with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

While on the job site, the company?s crew uses all CDC-approved PPE (Personal Protective Equipment) including a full-face respirator, disposable full-body coveralls, latex/nitrile gloves, and disposable shoe coverings. Dry Patrol also performs proper biohazard waste disposal practices by disposing of waste in specific biohazard waste bins in accordance with CDC and EPA-approved methods.
