Joseph Conley from McHenry Roofing says, ?Demand for flat roofs has increased over the past few years due to their distinctly modern look along with how easy they are to install and repair. Our team of professionals here at McHenry Roofing provides installation and replacement services for homeowners throughout Maryland.?

The team of experienced professionals at McHenry Roofing are capable of delivering effective and reliable flat roofing solutions. They can handle a range of flat roofing materials that have all been ensured to last, such as EPDM rubber membrane and modified bitumen systems. They take pride in their craftsmanship, and they can guarantee the high quality of flat roof systems they install or repair.

Joseph Conley adds, ?Depending on the material, commercial flat roofs typically cost between $4 and $9 per square foot to install. Most of them are much bigger than residential roofs, with 10,000 square feet being the average. Owners of commercial buildings can expect to pay between $40,000 and $90,000 for their flat roof depending on the material type as well as the need for drains, vents, and extra underlayment.?

McHenry Roofing also provides repair for all kinds of roof flashing, such as counter flashing, which is the flashing that is installed on top of the wall or chimney to prevent the entry of water that can cause damage to the chimney or wall. They can also repair roof-to-wall flashing, which the flashing positioned where the roof meets the wall also to prevent water from gaining entry. Its repair requires replacing or fixing damaged or corroded flashing. Vent flashing is installed around pipes protruding from the roof. Repair of vent flashing involves the resealing or replacement of any corroded or damaged flashing.

In addition to roof repair, McHenry Roofing also offers services for various kinds of gutters and downspouts. These are essential parts of the roofing system that also need to be maintained properly. They are needed to direct the water away from the home because water accumulating near the foundation of the home may cause problems with the structural stability of the home. An overflowing gutter can also cause water to go to places where it can cause damage to sidings and other parts of the home. Thus, it is important to ensure that the gutters and downspouts are not clogged with twigs, leaves, and other debris.
