A blocked drain is among the most frustrating situations a homeowner can find themselves dealing with. It causes water to build up and possibly even overflow, in turn leading to even more problems. As such, it is important not to let a blocked drain remain unattended for too long.

If not corrected by a professional, such blockages can result in the surrounding area suffering water damage as the contents of a pipe or drain spill out. This means costly repairs further down the line, which the majority of homeowners would prefer to avoid. Additionally, stagnant water acts as a breeding ground for bacteria, mould and other harmful organisms that may pose a risk to anyone who lives in the same house. Residents in the vicinity may also have to deal with unpleasant, persistent odours, although this is a somewhat less serious issue.

All of these concerns must be addressed quickly, and with the help of Zebra Plumbing, unblocking a blocked drain is usually a fairly trivial matter. The company has cleaned up numerous blocked drains over the years, helping countless families go back to their normal lives.
