They currently have an overall rating of 4.3 out of 5 stars on Google.

In a recent review, Daniel L. gave them a five star rating and said, ?PuroClean of Post Falls did an excellent job restoring my home. Their team was professional, efficient, and knowledgeable. They were able to remove all traces of water damage and leave my home looking like new. I highly recommend their services.?

One of the contributing factors to their five-star reputation is the PuroClean training center, which is the PuroClean Academy. This is one of the most advanced facilities offering top-level training in their industry. It has a new, high-tech classroom equipped with special features to make possible distance learning options, such as live and interactive video presentations; interactive webinars; and other hands-on learning options to offer the most effective adult education opportunities.

The PuroClean Academy also includes a futuristic Applied Structural Drying (ASD) facility, which is known as the ?Flood House.? This serves as the focal point of the real-life training provided to the PuroClean professionals. This ASD facility, which is only one of 24 in the world, has been approved by the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC). It should be noted that the PuroClean Academy provides all franchise owners and their workers the opportunity to get IICRC certifications.

Water damage restoration is for properties that have been damaged by water, such as leaks, floods due to storms, backed up sewer lines, broken pipes, malfunctioning toilets or faucets, and malfunctioning water heaters and air conditioners. Removing molds and mold remediation is usually a critical component of the water damage restoration process. A fast response is often required when it comes to water damage restoration because the longer the water is allowed in the property, the more damage it can cause.

PuroClean can also provide fire and smoke damage restoration. Quick response is also important when repairing the damage caused by fire. The longer the interval, the worse the damage can become. Fire damage restoration service providers like PuroClean understand how costly the replacement could be for household items, metals, fixtures, and other belongings. That is why the PuroClean professionals are highly trained and are equipped with the requisite expertise and knowledge to correctly provide fire and smoke damage restoration services. Before they start working, they will perform an accurate and detailed assessment of the full impact of the fire, which includes the extent of the heat, smoke, and residues from the smoke and fire.

PuroClean also provides mold remediation services to counteract the progress of mold growth, including the cleaning of the source of the mold odor, to bring back the property to its original pre-disaster condition. Mold damage may be due to a number of reasons, such as: construction defects, drain line or appliance water line breaks, plumbing failures, weather-related problems such as storms and hurricanes, and incorrect maintenance. Their IICRC certified technicians will comply with industry standards when performing mold remediation. They will also implement engineering controls and containment to avoid cross-contamination of unaffected areas of the building through the use of negative pressures with HEPA air filtration devices.

Founded in 2001, PuroSystems LLC is the company that introduced PuroClean, which has evolved into one of the top property damage remediation franchise organizations in North America. PuroClean has gained the trust of property owners, home service providers, and insurance professionals throughout North America. With the support of a comprehensive network of offices and a training and business support center, every PuroClean restoration professional is able to respond quickly to property emergencies.
